On Friday 23 October at Mornington Community House, SWAN women and guests gathered to celebrate the launch of our new book 'Where SWANs Soar' along with a photographic exhibition of SWAN members and SWAN advocacy groups expertly captured by Yanni Dellaportas. Jodie Belyea Member for Dunkley, Mornington Shire Councillor Kate Roper, SWAN founding member Judith Couacaud Graley and SWAN facilitator Diane McDonald launched the event. A slideshow of SWAN women and events viewed at our Anniversary lunch in May played whilst we enjoyed a delicious afternoon tea. Congratulations to the Launch Team for a fabulous and successful event: Judith Couacaud Graley, Moz Lucas, Susan Blackburn and Jill Warner, and much gratitude to all of our launch volunteers.

Building on SWAN 's first book 'When Women Meet' (2022), our second book 'Where SWANs Soar' (2026) is a lively and informative record sharing so much of what has been achieved by SWAN women in recent years. Congratulations to co-authors Judith and Diane for their time and effort to ensure SWAN's story is recorded in print. It is sure to be a source of inspiration for others looking for a successful model of advocacy and action in social justice.

Copies of 'Where SWANs Soar' can be purchased at our General Meeting on Sunday 15 November for $25.00. Framed portraits of SWAN members photographed by Yanni earlier this year are available for $30.00 (for the person in the photograph!). Alternatively, you can purchase your portrait and the book together for $50.00. For anyone not able to attend the November meeting, contact: SWANwomen@outlook.com to determine how to pay and collect these items.

30th ANNIVERSARY EXHIBITION LABEL

Words co-written by Judith Couacaud Graley & Moz Lucas; label production by Yanni Dellaportas

Where SWANs Soar

Southern Women's Action Network (SWAN) is a volunteer-led community organisation established in 1996 on the Mornington Peninsula and the City of Frankston to address social justice and equity concerns and increase women's active involvement in community decision-making.

Marking thirty years of SWAN, this exhibition showcases portraits and group photographs of some of our 250+ strong membership. While each of these women has her own unique life story, the thread that ties them together is the challenge of fighting for social justice in their community.

Each of the wonderfully feisty women individually portrayed have written about what drew them to SWAN, what keeps them being SWAN members and how they stay connected. The year next to each member's name indicates when they joined SWAN. The larger group portraits showcase some of our intrepid advocacy groups that are making significant inroads to address social concerns in our local area.

The activities SWAN has undertaken over thirty years make an impressive catalogue of community activism, using community development tools and networking, with substantial impact. This includes supporting the rights of First Peoples, opposing racism, campaigning for justice for refugees, addressing gender-based violence, and advocating to prevent homelessness and to promote housing justice in our region and beyond.

The foundations of SWAN, the particular character of the group structure and operations, have fundamentally remained the same for 30 years. A SWAN get-together is a welcoming, inclusive, safe and non-partisan space for women to meet. Over 180 admirable women have been guest speakers at the bi-monthly meetings. They have informed and inspired us, made us laugh and made us cry – without doubt, they have helped to empower SWAN women to soar.

SWAN is very grateful to professional photographer Yanni Dellaportas - not only for his expertise and care in producing these significant moments in SWAN's history, but also for his unwavering dedication and tireless support for SWAN's cause.

This exhibition celebrates friendship, wisdom, resilience and a determination to make this world a better place for all.

Feminist writer Simone de Beauvoir explains what SWAN women all think and feel:

"One's life has value so long as one attributes value to the life of others, by means of love, friendship, indignation and compassion."

Curating Team: Judith Coucaud Graley, Moz Lucas, Susan Blackburn, Jill Warner

This project has been supported by a placemaking grant from the Mornington Peninsula Shire.

The SWAN 30th Anniversary Raffle was drawn at the launch – many thanks to T2 Fitzroy, Yabby Lake Restaurant, and Panton's Winery for donating the prizes. Thank you to Mornington Peninsula Shire and to Bendigo Bank, Community Bank Balnarring & District for their sponsorship of this event.

JODIE BELYEA MP, MEMBER FOR DUNKLEY: 30TH ANNIVERSARY BOOK & EXHIBITION LAUNCH

Excerpts from Jodie's Speech, Friday 23rd October 2026

"Thirty years of community activism is an incredible achievement, and it is particularly significant for a women-led voluntary organisation that has continued to grow, adapt and make a difference through the dedication and determination of its members. SWAN is a wonderful example of what happens when women come together with a shared purpose, a strong sense of justice and a belief that our community can be better … The new book 'Where SWANs Soar' reflects the renaissance of SWAN - an organisation that has maintained its original purpose while responding to the changing needs and challenges of our community … Networking, the strength of relationships, enjoying being with each other and staying true to your purpose and values are all things that resonate with me when I think of my work leading the Women's Spirit Project and other voluntary endeavours. But the one tip that stood out for me today is that in spite of the hurdles we face we should never be afraid. Community activism is never finished … SWAN has continued to meet these challenges head-on. SWAN demonstrates what it means to turn a commitment to fairness into practical action … SWAN and its members amplify women's voices and the voices of those that are not so loud. SWAN ensures women have a seat at the table and have a genuine say in shaping our future. Recording SWAN's story through 'Where SWANs Soar' is such an important achievement. It preserves a history of women's community activism and ensures future generations can understand the role women have played in building a more just and equitable society … To everyone who has contributed to SWAN over the past three decades, thank you for your dedication, your courage and your belief in what women in community can achieve together. Congratulations on this remarkable milestone. May SWAN continue to soar for many years to come."

Questioner Responder
Speaker Belyea, Jodie MP Question No.

Ms BELYEA (Dunkley) (09:34): Before entering parliament, I worked in community development. That experience shaped my understanding of what it takes to create lasting change. It taught me the strongest solutions are built with and by communities, not delivered to them. Last Friday I had the pleasure of attending the 30-year celebration of SWAN—the Southern Women's Action Network—and its contribution to our community. SWAN is a wonderful example of what happens when women come together with a shared purpose, a strong sense of justice, and a belief that our community can be better. What makes this milestone even more remarkable is that after 30 years SWAN is not simply looking back at what it has achieved; it's more active than ever. Its new book, Where Swan s Soar, captures this story beautifully. It recognises the achievements of SWAN, the women behind its work and the importance of community activism. It also reflects the renaissance of SWAN, an organisation that has maintained its original purpose while responding to the changing needs and challenges of our community.

Community activism is never finished. The challenges change, the conversations evolve, and new generations bring new perspectives and energy, but the need for people who are prepared to speak up, challenge injustice and work towards meaningful change remains as important as ever. SWAN has continued to meet these challenges head on. From supporting the rights of First Nations people to raising community awareness about a broad range of justice issues, and taking action to address climate change, homelessness, and gender based violence, SWAN demonstrates what it means to turn a commitment to fairness into practical action. These are not always easy issues to tackle. They require courage, persistence and a willingness to listen to people whose experiences and voices have too often been overlooked. SWAN and its members amplify women's voices and the voices of those not so loud. SWAN ensures women have a seat at the table and have a genuine say in shaping our future. May SWAN and all the members from this amazing community organisation continue to soar for many years to come.

Empowering Young People Through Education

To round out our 30th Anniversary year we are delighted to welcome another inspirational speaker. A person who is making an indelible mark within our own community.

Lisa Holt became Principal of Rosebud Secondary College in 2017 and is its first substantive female principal. Drawing on her background in psychology and educational wellbeing, she has led the school with a strong commitment to equity, community and students. In 2024, Lisa was named Victorian Outstanding Secondary Principal of the Year. She serves on the Victorian Institute of Teaching Council and Australian Education Union Council and is a board member of the Mornington Peninsula Foundation.

In partnership with the Mornington Peninsula Foundation, the college is addressing generational disadvantage through the Mornington Peninsula Learning Guarantee. Its structured, evidence-based initiatives are strengthening student outcomes, attracting visits from more than 250 Victorian schools keen to learn from its teaching practices.

Join us to hear Lisa discuss mentoring young people, creating positive learning environments, using evidence-based programs and helping students navigate school and society. We also hope to hear from one (or possibly both) of SWAN's current bursary students, including key issues facing young people. Members of SW4HJ with Southern Peninsula Community Support, Paul Mercurio MP, The Hon. Nick Staikos MP, Minister for Homelessness. Photo: Supplied

Members of the SW4HJ Group were thrilled to be invited to a special announcement at Southern Peninsula Community Support by the Hon. Nick Staikos, Minister for Homelessness relating to two key issues for which our committee has been now advocating over the past several years. We were informed that the tender to manage the previously announced $2.1m for Assertive Outreach for the Peninsula has been awarded to the Better Health Network who have a team of trained and experienced outreach workers who have been providing this type of service delivery across a number of other LGAs across Melbourne for several years.
Details: https://www.bhn.org.au/services/physical-health/housing-homeless/

The second exciting announcement was the allocation of funds from the existing short stay levy for the establishment of 20 crisis accommodation units in Mornington. The Minister specifically thanked SWAN for our advocacy, and in turn, our group chair Judith Graley thanked the Minister for listening and acting on issues that are becoming more and more critical. These positive outcomes just reaffirm the value of advocacy, the importance of not giving up and of keeping the pressure on to achieve the changes we want to see for our local community.

On Tuesday 17 November, 2-3pm at Rosebud Library, authors Dr Marguerita Stephens and Aunty Fay Stewart-Muir will present a Q&A Session on their book: 'The Years of Terror Banbu-deen - Kulin and Colonists at Port Phillip 1835-1851'. This book is an invaluable resource for local Truth-telling.

Based primarily on the daily journal of Assistant (Aboriginal) Protector William Thomas, this work meticulously documents the lives, and deaths, of those who struggled to hold their Country as Lieutenant Governor La Trobe unleashed 'the terror of British law' on them. Both defender of Kulin rights and agent of empire, Thomas was a unique witness to the devastation of the Kulin, recording their heartbreak and defiance as they succumbed to disease and hunger.

'Banbu-deen: The Years of Terror' provides a new history of colonisation at Port Phillip, bringing the focus to bear on those who were violently dispossessed of lands and waters, theirs from time immemorial.
